

🎙️ Language Teaching Matters Aotearoa | New Zealand Podcast 🎙️

By language teacher educators, for language teachers

Kia ora koutou katoa,

We are thrilled to announce the launch of Language Teaching Matters Aotearoa | New Zealand, a brand-new podcast created by language teacher educators from universities across Aotearoa | New Zealand!

This collaborative project brings together expertise from initial teacher education programmes throughout the country to support language teachers at all levels. Each episode features experienced language teacher educators sharing practical ideas, research-informed strategies, and thoughtful reflections to enhance your language teaching practice.

Who should listen?

- Teachers of any language in primary, intermediate, or secondary schools
- Early childhood educators incorporating languages in their centres
- Tertiary language instructors
- Student teachers preparing for language teaching careers
- Experienced educators looking for fresh perspectives
- Anyone interested in language teaching methodology and practice

The podcast is now available on Spotify here. New episodes will be released fortnightly. We invite you to listen, share with colleagues, and join us in building a vibrant community of language educators across Aotearoa New Zealand!
